Part 3

Compare how the government treated two groups during the world wars: "enemy aliens" in 1914–1920 and Japanese Canadians in 1942. What was similar, and how did Canada later respond?

A good answer mentions: Similar: both were targeted for their origin, not for anything they had done; both were moved or held in camps and lost property or freedom; both used the War Measures Act. Later: Canada apologized and paid compensation to Japanese Canadians in 1988; for the First World War internment, a federal fund for education and commemoration was created in 2008.
