6. c) Political significance — Which concept of political thinking asks why an issue matters, and to whom?

Part 2

1 — Nova Scotia, then the Province of Canada, win responsible government (1848)

5 — The Ottawa Declaration creates the Arctic Council (1996)

4 — Canada is a founding member of NATO (1949)

3 — Canada signs the UN Charter as a founding member (1945)

2 — Confederation creates a federation with an appointed Senate (1867)

Part 3

Canada's Senate is appointed, not elected. Explain one argument for this and one against it.

A good answer mentions: For: senators can take a long view without facing elections; it brings in experts and under-represented groups; the elected House keeps the final say; it gives regions a voice. Against: appointed members are not accountable to voters; seats are not shared by population; appointments can reward political friends. A strong answer explains both sides fairly.
